

QUESTION BANK-IDT

Unit-1

1. What is innovation? List & explain three basic types of innovation with example
2. Distinguish between innovation, invention and discovery.
3. Classify innovation based on Category and explain each type briefly with example.
4. Explain the classification of innovation with examples, based on the overall global needs.
5. Explain the classification of innovation with examples, based on the degree of novelty.
6. Describe inventions of past and present with any two examples.
7. Differentiate between incremental and radical innovations. (Any other types can also be asked)
8. Select the product/process/service of your choice and list two features of the past and present. Explore the three features of the future for the selected based on functional or physical attributes for a new innovation.
9. Choose the Product below the features of the chosen product's past and present on the basis of functional or physical attributes. List and Explore the features of the future of the chosen product.
a. Bicycle, b. Telephone c. Screw drivers, d. Sewing machine (list can w.r.t., other topics also).
10. Differentiate between radical and incremental innovations with examples.
11. Write a note on creativity and innovation

UNIT-2

12. Explain technological need for innovation with an example.
13. Select the product /process/service of your choice and list two features of the past and present. Explore the future features for the selected based on functional or physical attributes for an innovation.
14. Explain the business , societal, and technological need for innovation with an example.
15. What is Brainstorming? Explain the process of Brainstorming.

16. What are the advantages and disadvantages of Innovation?
17. List and explain different phases of the TEDOC model of innovation with an example.
18. List and explain different phases of the SCAMPER model of innovation with an example.
19. Explain different types of models and the importance of models in innovation.
20. Explain the societal, and technological need for innovation with an example.
21. Explain the steps in Brainstorming process.